Virgin Australia announces appointment of new Directors [2]

In November 2013, Virgin Australia Holdings Limited (Virgin Australia) announced that it intended to work with its major airline shareholders, Air New Zealand, Etihad Airways and Singapore Airlines, in relation to future Board representation.

Virgin Australia Chairman Neil Chatfield today announced the appointment of three Non-Executive Directors to the Board of Virgin Australia:

- Mr Christopher Luxon, Air New Zealand;
- Mr James Hogan, Etihad Airways [Alternate Director: Mr James Rigney]; and
- Mr Goh Choon Phong, Singapore Airlines [Alternate Director: Mr Marvin Tan].

The appointments, which are effective today, have occurred following the adoption of a Nominee Director Protocol (Protocol) which sets out the procedures to be followed by the Board, its major shareholders and their nominated representatives on the Board. The Protocol will assist the management of potential issues relating to conflicts of interest and confidential information and ensure the Board continues to serve the interests of all shareholders.

Mr Chatfield said: “We are privileged to have such a strong and diverse group of leading international airlines as our major shareholders and it is with great pleasure that I welcome their nominated representatives to the Board. The new directors bring a wealth of global aviation experience which will further strengthen the Board.

“We have put in place strong protocols in relation to confidential information and any conflict of interest. The Board will continue to ensure it serves in the best interests of all shareholders.

“The Board will comprise of ten directors, four of which represent the major shareholders including Air New Zealand, Etihad Airways, Singapore Airlines and the Virgin Group. The remaining six directors include five independent directors and one executive director. The Board will retain its overall independence given that I, as current Chairman, am an independent director and the company’s Constitution states that the Chairman has a casting vote if there is an equality of votes at a meeting of directors. The Board considers this balance of representation appropriate given that over 79 per cent of the share register is held by Air New Zealand, Etihad Airways, Singapore Airlines and the Virgin Group which are, together with their nominated representatives, subject to the terms of the Protocol”, Mr Chatfield said.

Consultation on the Protocol was undertaken with the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission and the Department of Infrastructure and Regional Development prior to its finalisation. All major shareholders and their nominated representatives have provided their agreement in writing to the Protocol. A summary of the Protocol is attached to this announcement. A full copy of the Protocol will be made available on the company’s website.
