Virgin Australia at your service with new menus and even more affordable flights [2]

- Highly anticipated new Business Class menu revealed, featuring locally sourced produce supporting Australian growers and farmers
- Extensive choice with a new Economy buy onboard menu featuring popular snacks and drinks
- Better value for Business and Economy guests, following the up to 20 per cent reductions to Business Class fares made in November 2020

New onboard menus have been introduced on all Virgin Australia flights from today to give customers more choice and better value.

The menus include a fresh and delicious new Business Class menu focused on quality and simplicity and a buy onboard menu of popular snacks and drinks for Economy guests.

Business Class menu

The highly anticipated Business Class menu launch heralds a new era of flying for the relaunched Virgin Australia, with simple, modern, fresh and contemporary dishes, made using locally sourced Australian produce, now being served at 38,000ft.

Dishes include a range of hot meals, healthy salads and Australian classics, served on tableware, including crockery, glassware and cutlery, providing a quality in-flight experience and further reducing single-use packaging as part of the airline's continued commitment to sustainability.

Promising high quality and simplicity, the new menu will rotate on a bi-monthly basis and comes with all-inclusive premium Australian wine and beer, plus soft beverages and spirits.

The new Business class experience also triggered a training refresh for the airline's cabin crew, with new hospitality standards that focus on customer engagement allowing more time in the cabin with quests.

Economy buy onboard menu

Following significant time spent with consumers and Virgin Australia team members, the airline has found that travellers would prefer to choose their own food and beverage in a buy onboard model on domestic flights, instead of receiving a predetermined snack.

The new Economy buy onboard menu is designed to give travellers greater value, taking the previously included snack out of the ticket price, to provide great value fares every day.

Initially, the menu will feature the most popular snack and beverage items, including cheese and crackers and Australian wine, before a greater range of menu items are introduced later in the year when travel demand is expected to resume to near pre-COVID levels.

As part of the Economy experience, Virgin Australia will continue to serve complimentary tea, coffee and water on every flight.

Greater value airfares to stay

Following a reduction in the price of Business Class fares of up to 20 percent last November in comparison with pre-COVID-19 prices, Virgin Australia also announced today that the airline will undertake a further review of its Business and Economy Class fare brands.

The new fare brands will deliver better value for travellers, provide more flexibility and choice when compared to travelling prior to COVID-19. The significant win for consumers will make a seat in Business Class more accessible than ever before.

Commentary

Virgin Australia Group CEO and Managing Director Jayne Hrdlicka said that many months had been spent developing the new onboard experience following extensive customer research.

"We're continuing to write a new chapter at Virgin Australia and we're incredibly focused on creating great experiences for our guests. Today we've delivered an exceptional Business Class product and more choice and value for Economy guests that we know they're going to love," said Ms Hrdlicka.

"Our new Business Class menu and service design is high quality, relaxed, uncomplicated and exactly what our guests and team members have told us they want. I'm really proud of what we've delivered.

"The launch of our new Business Class food experience and a commitment to reduce airfares even further by the middle of this year, is a really great example of just how irresistible it is to fly with Virgin Australia.

Commenting on the reintroduction of an Economy buy onboard menu, Hrdlicka said: "Today's customers are more conscious about what they consume than ever before. We like to choose what we eat and what we drink throughout the day – we are simply extending that choice onboard as well.

"By removing snacks that aren't valued by our guests we're able to structurally reduce airfares making it even cheaper to fly. We'll continue to offer complimentary tea, coffee and water on all flights and the opportunity for guests to purchase their favourite menu items at a reasonable price," she said.

Virgin Australia General Manager Product and Customer, Sarah Adam said the new Business Class menu had been designed with altitude in mind.

"It's well known that when you're high above the clouds you lose some sense of taste and smell so this was a really important factor in designing the new menu so our food not only looks great but tastes great in the air," said Ms Adam.

"We've really dialled-up the flavours in the food with the right seasoning and textures to provide a very competitive Business Class experience for domestic travel in Australia.

"Supporting Australian farmers and producers was another important factor in designing the menu so we'll have seasonal Australian produce from local producers in dishes throughout the year," said Ms Adam.

Today's announcement follows the reopening of all seven Virgin Australia domestic Lounges, including a new-look Lounge of the future in Adelaide, a flexible booking policy until 31 January 2022, a five-year sponsorship renewal with the AFL, the inaugural Virgin Australia Pride Flight, the airline's first-ever onboard wedding, and the Federal Government's Aviation Support Package, which includes half-price fares.
